Big Bike. Big fun.

30 riders. 20 minutes.
4 wheels. 1 big goal:
Fund research breakthroughs.

Reina Ditta is leading the charge.

“Many of us have experienced the devastation of heart disease and stroke first hand,” says Reina, co-captain of Team GMEL (Genetic and Molecular Epidemiology Laboratory). “But Big Bike is a fun way to raise funds for research and spread awareness about these diseases.” Some of that research is happening in the very lab she manages. Lead by Dr. Guillaume Paré, GMEL staff are hunting for the genetic culprit for stroke. Their research will help change the future for countless families across Canada.

Lead the charge.
